One website, one dialogue, multiple workshops

The China-Europa Forum website reflects and facilitates the dialogue between the Chinese and the European societies.

The website is both the main tool of all those involved in this dialogue and the means for the public to learn more about the Forum. The framework, the overall methods, the organization and the work in workshops are presented in three languages, Chinese, English and French as well as all the information and reflections shared by the Forum community.

Organized in four sections

* INFORMATION

You will find here all the answers to your questions! To better understand the Forum, its history and organization and to follow the day-to-day activities on the workshops' pages, in the news and in the ForuMag', the trimestrial newsletter prepared alternatively in Europe and in China.

“ ACTION

Presents the conditions of participation to the workshops and gives access to the discussion forums and to the wiki to all those who wish to be involved in the Forum's endeavour, to know what debates are in progress and to give their point of view in the suggestion box.

{ DOCUMENTATION

Free access to comparative ressources on more than 45 common themes of interest: documents, studies, articles on and from Europe, on and from China; a search engine on all Forum and Coredem documents; the possibility for everyone to easily share documents with a large community.

& 2008-2009

Gives all practical information on the organization of workshops in the current biennial cycle et shows all Chinese and European proposals. The organization of the third biennial meeting in July 2009 in China will be detailed in this section.
